Introduction

The University of Connecticut is a resource for the future, both for the State of Connecticut and for the students who enroll in its programs. The emphasis at UCONN is on choice: the University of Connecticut can be anything students want it to be - it's a matter of taking advantage of the wealth of opportunities made available.

In April 1881, the Connecticut General Assembly established the Storrs Agricultural School after accepting a gift of land, buildings, and money from the Storrs brothers. The School opened on September 28, 1881. Before the turn of the century the name of the school had changed to Connecticut Agricultural College. Then in 1933 it became Connecticut State College and in 1939 the General Assembly designated the institution the University of Connecticut. Since 1881, the University has grown steadily and dramatically to fulfill its mandated objectives as a provider of high quality education and public service and as a contributor to society through research.

Sociology at the University of Connecticut

The Department of Sociology offers study leading to the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in sociology. Available study areas include: deviance, gender and sexualities, political sociology and social movements, racism/ethnic group relations, social psychology, stratification and inequality, demography, and work and occupations. Members of the department also work closely with Judaic Studies, African American Studies, Women's Studies, the Center for Population Research, Asian American Studies, the Human Rights Institute and the Roper Center. The 27 members of the faculty and 35-40 graduate students have a high level of interaction and they work together conducting research in many areas of the discipline. Pages 7-9 show our faculty areas of interest/specialization and pages 10-11 show where our students have secured significant professional positions in the US and abroad.

UConn's M.A./Ph.D. Program in Sociology

All students are accepted simultaneously into the M.A. and Ph.D. programs. Students must fulfill the requirements of the M.A. in order to obtain the Ph.D. Students with Master's degrees in sociology from other institutions will be accepted solely into the Ph.D. program. Students with Master's degrees in fields other than sociology must fulfill the requirements for both the sociology MA. and Ph.D.

Requirements for the M.A.

The purpose of all courses, exams, and dissertation requirements is training and education for scholarly work and research in either an academic or applied setting.

Students should complete the M.A. degree in two years or less. In order to remain in the Ph.D. program, students must write a Master's thesis. A student who decides not to pursue the Ph.D. may submit a portfolio of their scholarly work in four areas: social structure and personality, social theory, social organization, and methods instead of writing a Master's thesis. Portfolios may be submitted at any time.

The Master's degree in Sociology requires a minimum of 37 credits, including Sociology 5001 (Proseminar, 1 credit), Sociology 5201 (The Logic of Social Research, 3 credits), Sociology 5203, (Quantitative Methods I, 3 credits), and Sociology 5231, (Qualitative Methods I, 3 credits) Sociology 5251 (Core Theorists, 3 credits), and 9 credits of Master's Thesis Research (GRAD 5950).

Requirements for the Ph.D.

The Ph.D. in Sociology requires a minimum 30 credits beyond the Master's Degree, including), Sociology 6203, (Quantitative Methods II, 3 credits), Sociology 6231, (Qualitative Methods II, 3 credits), Sociology 6251 (Contemporary Sociological Theories, 3 credits and 3 credits of Doctoral Dissertation Research (GRAD 6950).

Students are eligible to take the General Examination for the Ph.D. degree after fulfilling residence and course requirements, including the foreign language requirement (or six to nine credits in a related area). The General Examination consists of two area examinations in areas chosen by the student with the advice and consent of the advisory committee. Each area examination assesses substantive and theoretical knowledge of the area, critical thinking and assessment skills, an understanding of the implications of this knowledge for general sociology, and methodological skills appropriate to the area.

Financial Aid

(Policy adopted 12-07-05)

The following timelines will be used in determining financial aid. These timelines reflect the fact that evaluations are done on March 1st of each year. Completion of these steps is not a guarantee of financial aid, which is always contingent upon the availability of funds.

The phrase "completion of graduate credits" should be interpreted to include thesis or dissertation credits. For the M.A., 9 of the 37 required credits may be thesis credits. Students are strongly discouraged from taking thesis credits in the first 2 semesters. For the Ph.D., 3 of the required 30 credits may be thesis credits; 27 credits must be in sociology courses (including the required courses 6203, 6231, and 6251); a maximum of six credits of independent study may be applied toward the Ph.D. (to be included in the 27 credits). Students must also satisfy the foreign language requirement either by taking 6 credits of related course work outside the department or by demonstrating proficiency in a language other than English. Students must complete their 27 sociology credits beyond the M.A. and the foreign language requirement by the 9th semester review. Students are strongly discouraged from taking dissertation credits during their first year after completion of their M.A.

Timeline for Satisfactory Progress:

- a) 1st semester (through March 1st): completion of 9 graduate credits, with a GPA of 3.3 / B+, and satisfactory performance in TA/RA assignments. (Possible special circumstances and exceptions: 1 incomplete, students needing language courses and 3211Q.)
- b) 3rd semester (through March 1st): Completion of 27 graduate credits (including core M.A. courses 5001 (a 1-credit course), 5201, 5203, and 5251), with a GPA of 3.3/B+, and satisfactory performance in TA/RA assignments. (Exceptions; 1 incomplete.)
- c) 5th semester (through March 1st): Completion of the M.A. (including, 37 graduate credits, thesis defense, and all core M.A. courses, 5001, 5201, 5203, 5231). Completion of 9 credits beyond the M.A. GPA of 3.3/B+, satisfactory performance in TA/RA/teaching assignments. (Exceptions; 1 incomplete.)

- d) 7th semester (through March 1st): Completion of 27 graduate credits beyond the M.A. degree (may include thesis credits), with a GPA of 3.3 / B+, satisfactory performance in TA/RA/teaching assignments (Exceptions; 1 incomplete.).
- e) 9th semester (through March 1st): completion of all sociology course work with a GPA of 3.3/ B+, completion of the comprehensive exams, satisfactory performance in TA/RA/teaching assignments. NB: It is highly recommended that students complete both comprehensive exams by the end of the 8th semester. (Exceptions; 1 incomplete.)
- f) 11th semester (through March 1st): Satisfactory defense of dissertation proposal. NB: It is highly recommended that students defend their dissertation proposal by the end of the 10th semester. No departmental aid beyond the 12th semester.*

*Any other aid received beyond the 6th year that does not come from departmental funds is at the discretion of the person or unit providing the aid. Beyond year 7, students may be hired at the adjunct rate, according to the department's needs and student merit. NB; The official department policy is that students cannot work on campus for more than 20 hours/week, although students may petition the Graduate Program Committee for an exception to this rule.
